

Tenth place awarded to Starhome in the Deloitte Technology Fast 500 EMEA 2005

Switzerland, 5th December 2005 The leading provider of mobile roaming technology Starhome, is proud to announce that it has been ranked tenth in the Deloitte Technology Fast 500 for the Europe, Middle East and African region.

The awards are researched and sponsored by the Deloitte Technology, Media and Telecommunications Industry Group (TMT) utilising the most objective industry ranking standards in the sector. The awards cover both public and private companies from 21 countries and include all technology areas, from life sciences to the Internet, and from computers to semiconductors.

Starhome was selected as the tenth fastest growing company over a five-year period, following in-depth research by Deloitte regional teams. Factors considered by the researchers in selecting the company include; its consistent growth stemming from its leadership in providing roaming solutions to mobile operators worldwide, the fact that it has developed its own proprietary technology and that it consistently invests a significant proportion of its revenue in research and development.

“We believe that our technology innovation, combined with impeccable execution has driven Starhome’s rapid growth over the last five years,” said Shahar Florence, Starhome CEO on accepting the award. “I look forward to this combination of skills continuing to carry Starhome forward to create substantial revenue growth for both ourselves and our customers”.

About Starhome

Starhome is the leading global provider of mobile roaming technology and services and maximises mobile network operator revenues by enhancing roaming services to subscribers in any cellular network, in any country and with any wireless device. Starhome solution categories include roaming infrastructure, optimisation, Virtual Home Environment with call completion and data & promotion, each offering services to increase roaming traffic, improve network capabilities and service continuity and generate revenues for mobile operators.

Starhome was a pioneer in developing value added services for the roaming market and is the recognised driving force in the industry today.
